Q: equivalent to pipe in Django I am a newbie and just started to learn Django. I'm reading Django Book from Beginning to intermediate and I came across this for concurrency: from django.core import jobs def my_delay(seconds, job): print 'Playing piano' import time time.sleep(seconds) delay = 3 j = jobs.Queue('spam', priority=10) j.enqueue(my_delay, (delay,)) j.start() It says: if you put a delay in the job (increase the last parameter of enqueue), it will be executed in the background I wonder is there any way to do the same in Django because I don't find any documentation in Google about that. A: You could use ThreadPoolExecutor: from concurrent.futures import ThreadPoolExecutor with ThreadPoolExecutor(max_workers=3) as executor: executor.submit(my_delay, delay) More information on ThreadPoolExecutor. A: You can use the threading module for your purposes. from threading import Thread def do_something(): # some work def do_something_else(): # some other work for _ in xrange(3): Thread(target=do_something).start() Thread(target=do_something_else).start() The Thread class allows you to create new threads from your Python code. The do_something_else method will be run in the background, while do_something continues running in the foreground.

Golden Globe Awards: Achievers in Music, Politics and Popular Culture Nearly eight years have gone by since Michelle Obama received a Golden Globe for her role as a high school teacher in the film "The White House," and some have wondered what other stars have been up to in those intervening years. Whether they've been distracted by their blossoming careers, extremely busy with re-election campaigns, or absorbed in big-budget thrillers that have sucked them in for months on end, a disproportionate number of actors and actresses have been relatively out of the spotlight

Winters, N.D. -- A 15-year-old boy was arrested Tuesday after he allegedly raped a 14-year-old girl at a North Dakota elementary school. The teen was charged with one count each of gross sexual assault and exploitation of a minor. He will be detained at a youth facility in East Grand Forks until his trial. The girl told police she was assaulted at Winters Elementary School during the first week of classes. An investigation showed that the girl's school bag was left in the boy's classroom with the door open. During the ordeal the boy also took photos of the assault, the girl's clothing and took cell phone video, police said. "I don't think this will be an isolated incident, because this was a good-sized school. I don't think it was isolated in her class or in his class. I don't think it was isolated," said Winters Police Chief Brian Kaschock. "Because he took all those pictures and videos, that tells me at least that he wants to take it again, maybe worse next time." The attack happened at the end of second period Monday. The boy was playing on his phone in class when the girl tried to get his attention. The boy was aware the girl was distracted, but he went over and raped her, according to a criminal complaint filed in Cass County District Court. Police searched the boy's cellphone and found the cell phone videos of the assault, along with numerous photos of the girl nude and under the clothed, the complaint said. Authorities believe the girl was victimized about a half-dozen times, most recently a few days before the assault at her school. The Winters Police Department notified North Dakota Attorney General Wayne Stenehjem's office about the ongoing investigation on Tuesday morning. Stenehjem launched the statewide check of high-school-age students. "There are over 100,000 kids under the age of 15 out there," Stenehjem said. "We want to make sure this isn't going on elsewhere." The three-page complaint says that the boy took the pictures and video after the assault because he wanted to share the act with his friends. He removed the girl's clothing so that it would not be visible in the photos and videos. He also gave the girl's bra to a male friend who he told would give it back to her later if she went to the bathroom.
