It is no secret that nobody remembers a single, long and complicated password. Therefore, this application assists you with creating a strong and memorable password, without compromising the speed and usability of the application. The program can generate a single, long and complicated password for you, based on a phrase, to satisfy every situation. Furthermore, the program can generate a password based on a set of different numbers, as a numeric password or PIN. A PIN is mostly used for saving a login token, because it is much easier to remember and memorize than a full, long password. A PIN is also much faster to create and easier to use. Thus, PIN is a crucial part of the application, when considering security. How to make an impression of the program to help users with safe data securing? Include the functions that any user uses to remember a password. A password is one of the most important means of securing data online. Therefore, the application should include the most common ways of performing this job, such as memorizing, memorizing a phrase, memorizing a sentence, memorizing a phrase from the phone, memorizing a word from a phrase or a sentence, memorizing a word from a phrase or a sentence from the phone. The advantage of using this application over creating and memorizing a long and complicated password is that you can keep a balance between its length and its memorability, by generating one based on a phrase. If a user wants to memorize something based on a word, he can use the word memorization function in the program, which is a very popular function. This way, you can use the most common means of memorizing passwords, and use the word memorization function, which is very convenient to use. Another thing that should be available in the application is the password generator function, which can generate a complex, long password, based on a set of passphrases. One of the important features for such an application is the phrase-based password generator. Furthermore, the application should include several mnemonics, such as the famous 7-2-3 method, which is the most important way to memorize passwords, when using this method, a user can memorize a long password without remembering it. Furthermore, you should add a combination of a word and a number for generating your own password
