The YouGov poll of 1,250 British voters shows that the parties are deadlocked, with Labour on 39.7% and the Conservatives on 38.2% (YouGov sampled both eligible Labour and Tory voters, meaning the sampling reflects the stated voters of each party). Both parties enjoy a negative net approval rating of minus 4.4%. In terms of popularity, the Conservatives are up from May 2014, when their net approval rating was minus 11.2%, and Labour is up from minus 13.9%. The Labour party's 22 point increase in popularity since the election is the largest since YouGov started measuring the popularity of the parties. Their projected increase in votes of 2.4% is the biggest result among the major parties. The Conservatives' 27 point increase in popularity is also the largest among the major parties, but their increase in projected votes is half as much as Labour's. The Conservatives' projected increases in votes are down from 31.6% to 28.2%. YouGov says the results are based on daily phone polls conducted between June 4 and June 6, 2015.

Q: JQuery rerun a function after an Ajax call I have a function to send data from a textarea to an ajax function that sends it to a php page. The page then returns results based on what the ajax call asks for. I then need to have that result display into a div. At the moment my results update function is only run once when the page loads. I need it to rerun after a response is returned from the PHP page. Here is my Ajax function:

Go Facebook Proxy Tool is a tiny and portable application that enables users to go to Facebook from any network which imposes access limitations for it, thus regaining full control over their account. This is possible using a special web browser. As installation is not a requirement, you can drop the executable file anywhere on the hard disk and just click it to run. It is also possible to save Go Facebook Proxy Tool to a pen drive or similar device, in order to run it on any machine with Facebook access restrictions. An important aspect to take into account is that the app does not create new entries in the Windows registry or Start menu, leaving the HDD clean after removal. Go Facebook Proxy Tool sports a virtual browser whose settings can be adjusted when it comes to the user agent (predefined or custom) and referrer (real or custom). Plus, you can manage cookies. The app's functionality extends beyond Facebook, as users may access any website via proxies utilizing Go Facebook Proxy Tool just like any other web browser. It is possible to encrypt URLs and pages, disallow cookies, as well as to remove scripts and objects. Low CPU and RAM is used during Go Facebook Proxy Tool's runtime. The tool loads webpages in reasonable time and remains stable throughout an online session. We have not come across any issues throughout our evaluation, since the app did not hang, crash or pop up error dialogs. In conclusion, users who want to bypass website access restrictions may use Go Facebook Proxy Tool with confidence. Since it is so intuitive, no user experience is required beforehand. Screenshots: Reverse Proxy HTTP to HTTPS I have multiple websites I need to access that require secure login, but also need to be available over HTTP. We have about 30 websites and about a 1000 images I need to access. I've been checking out reverse proxies like NGINX and Apache, and they're quite good. However, I need to be able to access the secure sites, the HTTP sites, and I'd like to be able to access the 1000 images from the secure sites. Is there anything that allows me to do this? A: have you looked at the mod_reqtimeout mod? It allows you to switch the buffer size for a connection to an SSL site, which will allow for a login of any time frame. A: The implementation of mod_reqtimeout is not perfect. It assumes the client will not reuse connections so there is an artificial limit. For example, if we want to switch a 100K request to a Secure Session, we have to wait max 10s for the mod_reqtimeout to switch the connection before the client will start to resend the request. To avoid this artificial limit, we should use mod_quic, which is designed specifically for HTTP/2. Here is a simple configuration example for the Apache's HTTP/2: LoadModule http2_module modules/mod_http2.so LoadModule reqtimeout_module modules/mod_reqtimeout.so # Go through each TLS/SSL site Require ssl Require ssl_verify=on

What's New In?

• This tool is quite intuitive, but you must set up your Facebook account before you can use it. This is because Facebook uses the "forgot password" feature to log you in to the application. When you install this tool, it will download into your browser a special browser that connects to Facebook and you must use that to connect to Facebook, otherwise it won't work. • Go Facebook Proxy Tool requires that you set up your Facebook account in order to work. • It is not a stand alone app, it needs to run in your browser. • Once you've downloaded the file, open it up and double click the setup icon to launch the setup wizard. You'll be prompted to enter your Facebook password, your email address, and your password again, all of which is required to create an account. • When it's set up, you can connect to Facebook without needing to log into your account. • It is not a web browser like the Chrome and Firefox browsers. It is a special browser that connects to Facebook and therefore is needed in order to connect to Facebook. • Some other web browsers, such as the IE and Edge browsers do not support this type of connection.
