Effects of interleukin 2 and interferon gamma on human leukemic cell proliferation in vitro. Effects of human recombinant interleukin 2 (IL 2) and recombinant human interferon gamma (r-IFN gamma) on the growth of Jurkat and HL60 human leukemia cell lines in vitro were studied. Our results show that IL 2 in a certain range of concentrations is highly stimulatory to both cell lines, whereas no such effect of r-IFN gamma was observed. IL 2 induced-growth of Jurkat cells was augmented by r-IFN gamma, whereas the growth of HL60 cells was inhibited in the presence of this cytokine. Experiments with various types of cell-cycle analysis revealed that IL 2 stimulated the Jurkat cells to enter the G0/G1 phase and HL60 cells to enter S phase. r-IFN gamma induced G2/M arrest of the HL60 cells. Although to a lesser degree, when both IL 2 and r-IFN gamma were used together, they did not potentiate or antagonize their individual effects. On the other hand, the effect of IL 2 on the HL60 cells was counteracted by r-IFN gamma, with an inhibition of cell growth. These data suggest that IL 2 and r-IFN gamma differentially interact with the two cell lines to affect cell growth. The growth inhibitory effect of r-IFN gamma for HL60 cells is probably due to induction of cell-cycle arrest at the G2/M phase, which could be reversed by IL 2. These results provide clues to the understanding of the mechanisms of their individual actions for the interaction of IL 2 and r-IFN gamma in regulating cell growth. It is highly likely that, this holiday season, you will have been taking a look at the books you are buying for your toddler and young child. The stories you

Growth and Effect of Cardiac Metabolism Parameters on Survival Outcome in Pediatric Patients with Primary Cardiac Disorders: A Prospective Cohort Study. Hemodynamic abnormalities have been described in childhood primary cardiac disorders and may be associated with increased mortality. Our aim was to investigate the relationship between cardiac metabolism parameters and survival in pediatric patients with primary cardiac disorders. This was a prospective cohort study conducted at a university hospital. Primary cardiac disorders with normal echocardiography were screened to detect potential metabolic abnormalities. These patients were then followed prospectively. Eighty-six of the 2,429 children admitted to the pediatric intensive care unit during a 5-year period were included. Follow-up was conducted until age 18 years. End points were survival, corrected survival, and 5- and 10-year survival. Survivors were more frequently arteriovenous oxygen difference (0.3 ± 0.5 vs -0.1 ± 0.3 mmol/L; $P = 3e33713323$)
