The three-day event will be held April 24-26, 2011 at the Santa Clara Convention Center in Santa Clara, Calif. The event brings together the community and the leaders from Fortune 500 companies and leading anti-malware technology providers to discuss the latest and most innovative methods for stopping the spread of malware, spam and other Internet threats. The program covers a broad range of topics, including how to detect and respond to malware, spam, denial of service attacks and other threats using Trend Micro's industry leading technology. The 2011 Mega Security Conference also will include industry-leading anti-malware technology demonstrations and technical sessions focusing on the top threats and solutions and the latest developments in anti-malware technology. "Our focus for the 2011 Mega Security Conference is to bring together the many different voices that protect today's Internet users from the variety of threats. This event will give users a greater understanding of the risks they face and ways to protect themselves." said Melanie C. Currier, vice president of marketing, Trend Micro. "We are proud to host such a prestigious event and look forward to sharing our anti-malware, anti-spam and other technologies with attendees at this year's conference." The conference will showcase five custom-designed exhibits, each highlighting anti-malware technologies from Trend Micro: Alliance Security: Their award-winning core anti-malware solution is a component of Trend Micro® LiveSafe® and provides multi-layer threat detection, protection and recovery against cyber-attacks across an organization's endpoints.
