------------ The Macro Management tool allows you to add several macros into an Application (or a file) in order to repeat tasks at predefined moments. The application will include the Macro Definitions in its binary, so that the macros can be executed when the application is launched. The Macro Definition, just like a normal macro, consists in a series of statements, delimited by "! " and written in the script language (See the Scripting tool). In addition, you can export the definitions into a script file, that can then be imported into a different Application. The Macro Manager allows you to create and edit macro definitions. You can view, search, select and delete macros that are already defined. You can also copy macros definitions from one application to another. In addition, if the Application is not modified, the new definition will be applied every time the user launches it. Moreover, you can view the macro details: the name, source file, ID, status, command lines, level and comments. Keymacro is included in the standard profile of NIS. KEYFOCUS Description: -------------------- This tool is included in the standard profile of NIS. With Keyfocus, you can set the Focus window automatically when opening a specific Application, as well as quickly switch between several Applications, according to their status. The program allows you to choose the key to be activated, as well as the state of the window to be changed, among the different possibilities that are available. The application displays an alert message if the status of an Application has changed, giving you the possibility to update your options by clicking on the button. If an application is not loaded, the program displays a message. In addition, the application can display the details of a window by clicking on it, in order to quickly select it. You can also highlight a certain window with the help of this tool. In this way, the application displays the window's information in the main screen. You can also use Keyfocus to quickly locate a file that you wish to edit. KEYRUN Description: -------------------- The Run tool allows you to create shortcuts to your Applications. This tool is included in the standard profile of NIS. You can choose the directory of your Applications by setting the path to search. Then, you can name the Application and create a new shortcut by simply clicking on the icon. If the shortcut is well defined, the application will be launched with the previous configuration 77a5ca646e
