Postscript Postscript is an ASCII print formatting language and the standard printing language for the world's publishing houses. Using Postscript, you can preview and output an image for print. It works like a printer and also comes with an application called Ghostscript. * _Wikipedia:_ . * _Adobe Postscript:_ www.adobe.com/products/postscript. * _Ghostscript:_ www.ghostscript.com/gs/products/index.html. # Chapter 13. Capturing and Preparing Color Images In the last chapter you learned how to work with raster graphics and manipulate them. In this chapter you'll learn how to deal with color images in every way. This includes working with color in design and document preparation and outputting color images from the Web and to a variety of print and display media. ## Working with Color in Design When you work on a project, you'll often need to work with color. You can start a project without any color and add color later. You may also choose to work with shades of gray instead of colors, but it's easy to add color to your design. You

To get ready for the Christmas holidays, Old Faithful Geyser will be shut down for 14 days. The geyser doesn't just provide a great photo opportunity for families and visitors; it also pumps 108 million gallons of hot water into the park each year. Old Faithful is the second-most-visited geyser in Yellowstone, according to the Greater Yellowstone Coalition, an advocacy group, and it is the only geyser within the Lower 48 states to erupt continuously. After eruptions, Old Faithful sits about 97,000 gallons of water under pressure that can shoot out with up to 29 feet (9 meters) of force. A first-time visitor to the Yellowstone area might notice it spouting before even arriving at Old Faithful, as it's common to hear a loud popping sound as the hot water gushes into the air. The geyser's eruptions also help maintain Yellowstone, in the process preventing an estimated 3,500 tons of sediment from settling into the river, according to the Yellowstone Superintendent's Office. The shutdown will take place during the week of Christmas, because heavy crowds tend to descend on the area around the holidays. Overflights for the New Year's holiday are not allowed, and Old Faithful closes for the season on Jan. 1, 2016. Old Faithful, which is 9 miles west of the rest of the park, was discovered in 1885, according to the U.S. Geological Survey, and the first official eruption in 1895. However, Old Faithful did not erupt regularly until 1949, when it was discovered that the geyser could be highly reactive.

Pulmonary function in children with eating disorders. The pulmonary function of 9 girls aged 9 to 16 years with anorexia nervosa and 10 girls with bulimia nervosa was compared with values from a large population of girls aged 8 to 18 years. Pulmonary function was measured by measurement of forced vital capacity and forced expiratory volume in one second (FEV1) and forced midexpiratory flow between 25% and 75% of the forced vital capacity (FEF25-75). Both indexes of lung function were significantly lower than those of the control population in the anorexic and bulimic groups. The bulimic group had significantly lower forced vital capacity and FEV1 than the anorexic group and higher FEF25-75 than the anorexic group.

Montana Board of Pardons and Parole The Montana Board of Pardons and Parole was created in May 15, 1980 by House Bill 1, Chapter 296. The members of the board are appointed by the governor and may not be affiliated with political parties. The governor appoints six members from the members of the Montana Legislature who are not career legislators (Senate seats and Governor's seats are elected positions). The governor appoints two additional members to the board by the state auditor. The remaining three members are appointed by the state senate president. Board members serve for a term of four years. The board itself has no power to parole offenders. The parole power is vested in the Montana Board of Pardons (Chapter 345) which is appointed by the governor. Upon expiration of the original 4-year terms, board members are eligible to reapply. Board members may not serve more than two consecutive terms. The governor may not remove a board member without cause. Board members are paid $12,000 for each year of service and receive an automobile allowance.
