Features Key:

- Crazy RPG game elements - Running out of resources, encounter a new enemy, standing in a doorway and taking a pack of Cigarettes won't help. Your character fights to survive. Every encounter with a new enemy will result in a battle with clever choices. If the game element gave us enough trouble, you'll have to find a way to get past it.
- No hints, no help. Anything goes - In Reginald, we've kept the formula simple: Everything is connected, there is no order on how to proceed, and there are no help you can get. You play Reginald for yourself. Win or die, it's up to you.
- Is there a limit on the number of enemies? - The game gives you only one goal to save the world and to get rid of these nasty enemies. You won't have the time to become a whiz-bang at it. Your character will fight to survive, and you will die. It's up to you to play by the same rules as the enemy. As you will learn, you will never know where the game stops, and you might not even want to know.
- No loadscreen - This means zero waiting. Once you get into the action, Reginald is ready to roll.

What's new in Beyond The Horizon:

The "Adventures" series of "1 on 1" games run by members of Pathfinder Play By Post (PBP) and Pathfinder Roleplaying Game (RPG) focuses on a bit of RPG history and a few lesser-known support classes, and this isn't the last of the series. This particular game, The Sixth Cavalier, examines the Cavalier Class, and is 1 on 1's 4th episode. All the details, including a map, are here. The 4th episode of the "Adventures" series of "1 on 1" games runs by members of Pathfinder Play By Post (PBP) and Pathfinder Roleplaying Game (RPG), with a colorful history and some lesser-known support classes. The game is set in the Fall of 407, and the players are competing for control of the city of Nagash, to be sure that no military threat continues to harm the city. The character and history are theirs to define, until the games start, of course, where both are randomly assigned roles and the game gets underway. In this case, our hero is Rom, a scholar and hunter specialized in taking down bone-men — the results of his endeavor on this, his first, adventure. We will see where this leads. Before we begin, though, I want to thank Bill Meade at GM Screencasts for winning the song writing contest and being awarded a free copy of Project Red when our copy arrived from Russ in his mysterious ways, along with life-changing memes (such as the ones in the previous link). He will be losing the Dragonsong contest in ways even he may not soon recover from. But we'll have a video - eventually. Other than that, we have the Fellows, here to greet you from this rainy-delightful Month of May. And the Fellows have a Game Master, themselves, Ron Miller. All right, see you in the forums.
