patrol: Kodiak firefighters make two rescues 1:43 PM, Oct. 25, 2013 Kodiak resident Mike Borja talks about the recent OSPCA case that has impacted the Kodiak community. Written by The Kodiak Fire Department responded to about 16 calls for dogs that didn't know how to swim over the weekend. But on Tuesday, the department responded to a July Falls call where a U.S. Forest Service firefighter was in trouble on a Treadwell boat. Two firefighters, one with the USFS and one with the Kodiak Fire Department, jumped in and rescued the man. The boats went down after a small wave knocked them over. Also on Treadwell Island the same night, firefighters with the Department of Fisheries and Wildlife trapped and removed two pet Siberian Huskies from an... in individual visual counterprediction error in similar ways as bottom-up evidence on *a*-priors and *b*-priors, the results with the JND model of the choice dynamics are different. We predict that the sign in the context effect will be positive and independent of the baseline level of visual evidence in the context, as we did for both models with orthogonal posterior spreads. We also predict that the hierarchical prior models will capture the same trends as the JND model of the choice dynamics (except for the late-breaking cue which is again independent of the baseline level of visual evidence). The model that includes Bayesian inference shows the strongest behavioral predictions for visual evidence in the numerosity domain, consistent with previous models and with the aforementioned behavioral observation by \[@pone.0224301.ref016]. Humans detect the numerosity of the number set with WLE rather than with visual evidence, which may mean that there is no required counterprediction in this case of visual evidence. The control in this case might be more via an orthogonal combination of probabilistic inference and bottom-up evidence for numerosity. However, alternative models in which baseline sensory evidence and internally generated priors are combined with WLE information are also possible. Bayesian inference in the hierarchical prior model (Eq 4{ref-type="disp-formula"}) simulates a weighted combination of the choice signal with the visual evidence *d*, with a *c* weight, whereby the numerosity signal is *S*~*b*~
