Bookmark.. for example.New York State Route 170 New York State Route 170 (NY 170) was a state highway that served southwestern Westchester County in central New York in the United States. It existed in the 19th and early 20th centuries, mostly connecting the village of Mount Pleasant to the village of Carmel. What is now NY 171 was once part of NY 170. It was constructed from Mount Pleasant to Carmel in the mid-19th century and remained a state route until it was decommissioned and replaced by County Route 4A (CR 4A) in 1921. Route description NY 170 began at an intersection with the modern-day intersection of New York State Route 100 and Westchester Avenue in the town of Mount Pleasant. The route headed northward, running through dense residential neighborhoods. At the intersection with Bickford Avenue, the route split from NY 100.

North of this point, the route continued through densely residential areas of Mount Pleasant as an unnamed road before crossing into the village of Carmel. In Carmel, the route ran along Lawrence Street. After passing by several residential houses, NY 170 crossed over a railroad line and ran along the Carmel–Mount Pleasant Cemetery Road, a county maintained road named for the cemetery to the east. At a junction with South Avenue, the route transitioned to Mount Pleasant Avenue, which carried NY 170 into the village. Mount Pleasant Avenue became residential as it followed an S-shaped route through the village. After intersecting Union and Randall avenues, the route curved to the northeast, crossing over Pleasant Street. North of Pleasant Street, the route once again curved to the north-northwest. At the intersection with Water Street, the route ran in-between two large estates. NY 170 ended at an intersection with NY 171 (now NY 171A) and Cemetery Road, then a short distance north of Westchester Avenue.
