Any woman who has considered having a child knows that there are many expenses involved. Education, baby products, clothing, transportation, diapers, formula, milk, strollers, toys, housing and much more are all essential in your child's development. Not to mention the fact that most American families are buried in debt. Birth expenses, although a huge cost, are the least of the money problems facing most parents. CPR is a positive force that empowers families to face their difficulties and develop practical skills for success. Being educated is one of the best resources. Unfortunately, most people are not empowered to gain education; for this reason, CPR is an essential ingredient for the revitalization of our society. To help make information about CPR free to the masses, as well as to train people to teach others CPR, we need donations. Education is a right, but CPR is a privilege. Please help make CPR available for all who aa67ecbc25
