Sketching tools Perhaps the most important tool in your Photoshop toolbox is the _pencil tool._ You can use the pencil tool to create new shapes and draw lines for working on or cloning an image. For example, to add an outline around a face, you start by creating a new layer. Then you work on that layer and the original face layer. You can adjust the size of the line by moving your cursor over the line and dragging the width of the line to create a wider or narrower line. You can also use the Pen tool to create paths and create new shapes. The Pen tool allows you to create paths, which are paths or lines inside a document that you can trace and create new objects from. You can use paths to create objects such as lines, curves, shapes, and arrows. I cover drawing tools in Chapter 10. You can also use the Magic Wand tool to select an area for selection and then use the Refine Edge option (in the Tool Options box) to add or subtract (or in some cases, create entirely new) pixels from the selection. The Tool Options box provides options for selecting a brush, adjusting the size of brush strokes, and setting the softness

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a vehicle door structure that is used for a side door in a vehicle and has a bifurcated reinforcing structure, and a glass run unit that is coupled to the door structure.

2. Description of the Related Art A vehicle door panel is formed as a thin panel made of steel. The door panel is coupled to a door frame that includes a side sill, a door opening formed in the door frame, and an upper sash coupled to the side sill via a gable panel. In a vehicle door structure that includes the door panel, in addition to reinforcing the thin steel sheet, an inner trim panel having the floor trim shape is arranged in the door panel so that the inside of the vehicle can be finished in the shape of the door panel to enhance the design of the vehicle, so-called door decor. The door panel is formed in a hollow shape in which an inner side of the door opening, an upper end portion of the side sill and an upper end portion of a door frame extending toward an interior of the vehicle are arranged in the longitudinal direction of the vehicle, and the lower portion of the side sill is supported by the vehicle body via a seal member. The glass run unit is fixed to the side sill in a position where the glass run unit extends substantially along a lower end of the door opening in a longitudinal direction of the vehicle. In the vehicle door structure, a glass run channel is disposed below the seal member and provided in the lower portion of the door opening so as to guide glass. The bottom of the glass run channel is substantially flush with the ground, and the glass run channel is closed by a weather strip and a seal member on the outside thereof. The inside surface of the glass run channel is covered with a glass seal so as to prevent rain, snow, etc. from invading into the glass run channel. The glass
