Quick ShutDown is a useful tool to protect your computer and the data you store on it. Quick ShutDown is freeware and does not make any changes to your computer or the registry. Better Than Quick Stop! OK, so I am thoroughly impressed with Quick Stop! I have been using it for months now and I am not going to switch, however I was wondering if there was an alternative that wouldn't require me to install anything? Sure, I could set various configurations in the program (hotkeys, tray icon, etc) but there seems to be something missing with Quick Stop that makes it the superior program. I could use the hotkeys to shut down, reboot, lock my computer, logoff, hibernate etc... but I don't want to have to go through each function of every function to shut down. I don't want to go through the registry tweaking, I don't want to mess around with settings (there are few settings that I've seen that I find useful and don't want to have to change every time I want to shut down the computer). My question is this: is there any other shutdown utility that just does the same thing as Quick Stop?Compositional differences among New Zealand white rabbits' milk fed to young and older non-lactating females. Growing concerns over the health and welfare of female rabbits, and their offspring, have led the authors to investigate potential causes for differences in maternal milk composition between suckling young (9 weeks of age) and non-lactating older (19 weeks) females.
