Credit to Jou for the raw.Q: Android AdMob: httmlinks.html file does not show ads on some devices I have an app which has some internal links on UI and each URL can take user to login screen. I have set up AdMob in my app successfully but now the issue is that AdMob shows ads on Android 2.2 and below but not on android 4 and higher. My suspicion is that AdMob code detects the link on specific Android versions and i need to use html links. Can anybody share the sample project? Thanks. A: According to the AdMob AdManager API there is no direct equivalent for HTML. You must include the ad units in the XML layout. Elden Ring Download (April-2022)

"What a fun game that continues to please as you advance from a novice to a full-fledged master. Aside from its deep gameplay, the game's graphic and sound design are also on par with the best in the genre." (Kotaku) "The game is a good one for those of you who want to experience the RPG as it was meant to be played. If you're looking for an RPG that just feels right and has something to offer you, Elden Ring is a must have." (Just A Split Second) "A wonderful exploration into a brand new setting and the designs that go with it. Elden Ring is worth a purchase." (RPGamer) "There are some very nice touches in Elden Ring, like the character portraits, the effective and varied menu, the fun additions of the Giant Spider and the Hollow Donkey to the battlefield, the ability to craft items, and the ability to go on quests. Alongside your party and equipment, the game is a fantasy experience like no other, and it's greatly rewarding." (GameSpot) "Elden Ring is good fun and it has the makings of a really big hit. The game has a world brimming with life and there's plenty to do and see - just don't expect a big story. If you like early-2000s fantasy RPGs, this is the one for you." (Retro Gamer) "Elden Ring is a fun, fast-paced game. It's also probably the best pure action RPG you'll find at any price. If you've been looking for such a game, Elden Ring is hard to go wrong with." (Metro) "Elden Ring is a solid, authentic adventure." (Racing Game News) "The game has its share of problems but this is not a game for those who want an exemplary fantasy RPG. Elden Ring is a unique experience that manages to put the players in control of their own stories with an interesting setting and characters." (Gamespot) "Visually, Elden Ring is a visually striking game that draws you into its own self-contained world, and brings a level of detail and attention to detail never before seen in an RPG." (PC PowerPlay) "This fantasy RPG provides a lot to consider, and though the experience is quite standard, I found myself enjoying the journey." (Gaming Nexus) bff6bb2d33
