Related StumbleUpon Digg Pinterest Webs reddit So I'm setting up this post to tell you about a game called The Room, which became a phenomenon upon its release in 2015. A few days ago, I got a notification about the game in the App Store and downloaded it without having heard of the game before. Within a few hours, I was more than excited about what I was reading about the game and decided to give it a try. The Room is a puzzle game developed by Fireproof Games and published by Fireproof Games, Inc. in 2015. An instant hit, the game has already been downloaded over 150 million times. Not only that, but a lot of people enjoy the game and keep coming back to it every day. The Room is available for free on both iOS and Android devices, and I'm here to tell you about what makes this game so great. In the game, you're trying to find your way out of a house that is seemingly made of paper and you are the only person who can find the key to the door. Coffee and Game Theory: Play Noob to Pro Getting started with the game is simple. The game starts at your house, with a letter on your coffee table. When you click the letter, the game will take you on a journey to find the correct color code, so you can open the other letters on your coffee table. These letters contain rooms for you to explore, including living rooms, bedrooms,
