I am new to Gopher and have an empty directory where I want to create /etc/pam.d/lightdm-autologin. The directory is owned by the user in question. The user in question has all permissions to the directory. The user in question can't sudo. The user in question cannot cd into the directory. The user in question can write to /etc/pam.d/lightdm-autologin. The user in question is always asked for a password but is never prompted for a password. The user in question just seems to be able to write to /etc/pam.d/lightdm-autologin. The user in question is identified as the same in /etc/passwd. My understanding of Linux permissions is obviously flawed in some places. Can someone please help? I am using Gopher 0.14.3-27. Thank you. Problem: Terminal in Gopher can't write to a directory whose owner is other than root. | Fix | Bug | Support Download mp3 songs search YouTube channels Download in the Browser Download Online Version 1 Download Online Version 2 Download How to download.bat files in Win 7 | Download and/or install.bat files and run them with Win 7 | Download and/or.bat file for your needs from my site. 6d1f23a050
