Do you have what it takes to become World Champion?1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a semiconductor device and a method for manufacturing the semiconductor device. 2. Description of the Related Art A technique for increasing the integration of a semiconductor device is widely used in a fabrication process of the semiconductor device. However, with the increase in the integration, the size of a memory cell is decreased, thus greatly increasing the thickness of a gate oxide film. For this reason, it is likely that a silicon substrate and an insulator film are damaged by plasma used to etch the insulator film, that is, damage by plasma charges. The damage by plasma charges is known as "ETCH DAMAGE". For example, Japanese Patent Application Publication No. 2004-173630 discloses a structure in which impurity ions are not implanted in source/drain regions of MIS transistors, while nitrogen ions are implanted in source/drain regions of MIS transistors in order to suppress the implantation of plasma charges. Further, Japanese Patent Application Publication No. 2004-173630 also discloses a technique of forming an offset spacer in each of the impurity ions implanted in the source/drain regions of the MIS transistors to suppress the implantation of plasma charges to some extent. According to Japanese Patent Application Publication No. 2004-173630, the above technique can suppress the implantation of plasma charges and form a nitride film in the source/drain regions of the MIS transistors. The nitride film formed in the source/drain regions reduces the dielectric constant of the source/d
