A: The link you posted in your question, only has a "Download" page, but no "What's New" page, so it doesn't really answer the question. There's a new release of RTX for Windows, 2015: There's also a new (unreleased) version of RTX64 for Windows, version 5.2: CNS compatibility of lactate acid anhydride. The CNS compatibility of the new organophosphorus compound, lactate acid anhydride (LAA), was examined in mice and rats. LD50 values in male and female mice of 70 and 110 mg/kg, respectively, were unchanged in LAA administration when compared with saline (control) following s.c. (7.5 mg/kg) and i.v. (30 mg/kg) routes of administration. However, when dogs were administered 10 mg/kg LAA i.v. there was no evidence of any reaction and no statistically significant differences when compared with the control values. In rats, the i.v. LD50 was 88 mg/kg in males and 90 mg/kg in females, which is similar to control values. The i.v. LD50 was unaffected by LAA, by the diuretic furosemide or by administration of the anesthetics, thiopentone, ethyl ether, and diazepam. Anesthetics administered intravenously did not affect the CNS toxicity of LAA. Receptor binding studies indicated that LAA had a higher affinity ($K_d = 2.71$ nM) for the beta-adrenergic receptor than did Ritalin. LAA was found to be stable in whole blood and plasma, and was stable in carbonated and buffered 0.01 M NaOH at room temperature for up to 4 days. When LAA was administered intravenously, the plasma half-life in the rat was 1.71 hr.1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method and apparatus for producing a magnetic resonance image. 2. Description of the Related Art JP 2005-16
