Plurk.Q: How to fix the strange reference to my function so that nodejs will refer to it correctly I've built a function to take queries from the browser's POST and make them into a query in MongoDB. It works as it is supposed to, but nodejs always wants to use my global function instead of that

---

```
I've created. app.js function parsePost(post, callback) { var params = {}; var helpers = require("./helpers.js");
helpers.makeRequest(post, params, function (err, res) { if (res) { //do stuff } else { console.error(err); } callback(params); }); } index.js var express = require("express"); var app = express(); var router = express.Router(); router.post("/", parsePost); //start server var port =
process.env.PORT || 8080; app.
