excitement is gathering in the lead up to the start of the Games. As the athletes and visitors to the city begin their preparations, organisers have released a checklist of what the British public can look forward to during the next fortnight. Visitors will be able to see the Paralympic Village, where more than a third of the more than 3,500 athletes competing will stay, and watch Paralympic sport. They will also be able to see and hear athletes while they compete in the stadium and crowd-fuelled events on the athletics track. They can expect to see the ceremony every evening in London, with a mixture of performances that include a Paralympics concert with Ellie Goulding, the Paralympic Games Cultural Programme, a gold collection on the streets of London and a victory parade. "The atmosphere will be fantastic," said Dave Brailsford, Team GB's head coach for the Paralympics, in a press
