nice job showing that little program's (silver) features..nice job. with other apps, even if you see how it works on youtube, people will tell you that "it's so easy". however, with this little app, the instructions are so detailed that i'll be able to ask the developer to add the functionality that i want. hopefully they wont bug me. hence, the gold price of 513 is down from 574, so in percentage terms it is down 26.4%. that is a significant move down in the uk gold price and there is speculation that it will impact the uk gold price. the gold price of 513 was 574, of those 24 extra have been withdrawn from circulation. hence, that is a 17.5% rise in the gold price and anyone should be able to work out that the £ is down 25% from that point of view. the gold price has been around $1,200 since august 2015, and when it was at that level it was about 6.5% higher than it is now. this is well within the normal fluctuations of the gold price over time and so i don't see anything exceptional happening today. of course it is always possible for something to happen tomorrow, or over the following 3 days, but i don't expect that to be the case, with the gold price likely to remain in its present "down" position. in summary, the gold price of 513 is down 22.5% from may 2015. at that time, the rate of inflation was 2.3%, and during 2015 it averaged 2.7% over the year. you may, therefore, add 2.7% to whatever was the current gold price. the pound is the worst performing currency in the world so far this year. on 12th march, when the vote was going to be announced, it was trading at 1.39, which is 22% lower than it is now. it had been at 1.40 just before the vote to leave, so that is down 23.3% in the past two months. if a brexit vote had been held yesterday the pound would have been trading at 1.31 - ie 17.6% lower than it is now.
