Hyena Visualizer is an application that will offer a fast visual display of the configuration and working status of your computer. In this tool, you can view hardware devices, software, services, installed software and other configuration and system information. All of this can be explored in a tree-structure view that shows all its information in a compact display. Hyena Visualizer was designed specifically for easy and intuitive exploration of your system. By clicking on the different nodes of the tree, the available information becomes visible. Just like the default Windows version, Hyena has a number of predefined templates, each with their own view. 3. Services - The Services section offers a list of all the system services currently running on your computer. In addition, the tool provides information regarding the status of each service, such as whether the service is up or down, the type of service (background, foreground, startup), etc.
4. Users - In this section you can list all the user groups on your computer, as well as the current user or user group that is logged on the system. You can also add and remove users and groups from the list.
