This is a very simple question: How can I remove the overlay of SKSpriteNode after it is tapped? I have created one tile sprite in my game. When it is tapped it will change the overlay image to the last clicked position. How can I remove this so it changes back to the original? A: Remove the SKSpriteNode from its parent so it isn't added to the scene again when you're adding a new sprite. When you remove it from the parent you're removing it from the scene, so it won't be added again when you add it to the scene again. Tesla Inc. has said it plans to deploy about half of the $3.5 billion it borrowed in the past two years through bond sales to give Chief Executive Elon Musk's firm cash to buy back almost $2 billion of its shares. The company has repeatedly said that it intends to return cash from the debt to investors. But Tesla has also said it intends to use most of the proceeds for "general corporate purposes," which it has defined as the use of the money at its...How to Earn Free Bitcoin Online Free Bitcoin Online: As you read this, the world economy is in the grips of a dismal recession that's spiraling into a depression.
