REUTERS/Charles Platiau/File Photo The Interfax news agency said on Saturday the matter was not directly linked to the London-based news agency's reports that Moscow was building up the defense forces of Syrian President Bashar al-Assad. The news agency said the firm was planning to sell its assets to investors from the Russian oil industry and other sectors. "Cyprus and Russia have initiated the process of handing over the problem on the disposal of the assets of the Thomson Reuters business in Cyprus," the central bank said in a statement posted on its website. "The list of assets has been given to the Russian side and they are being taken under protection measures."
